Dear Steve:

Thank you for taking the time out of your busy schedule to speak at Gulf Power's 13th Annual Economic Symposium. We know the amount of time and energy it takes to prepare and present to an audience and we appreciate your willingness to participate.

Both your stories and the passion with which you delivered them can have a major impact on an audience. I was extremely impressed with the level of enthusiasm and amount of wisdom you were able to impart in the short time you were on stage. Now more than ever, we need to inspire members of our committee to look for the kernels of hope.

Northwest Florida – Prepare to Launch goes beyond just being a theme. It is our community adapting to the current economic climate and being prepared to take advantage of the opportunities as they are presented. The involvement of government, business and educational institutions in developing industry clusters, encouraging entrepreneurship and investing in workforce development will allow our region to thrive and flourish in harsh economic times.

As always, please let us know if we can be of any assistance to you.

Sincerely,
